Reason(s) for the nomination

Cassidy is one of those amazing students that every teacher looks forward to having in their classroom. Although Cassidy is quiet by nature, her artworks scream out loud and demands attention by anyone walking by the display. Cassidy has a special touch to her artwork. Her meticulous touch is enjoyed by all that view her artwork. A viewer can see the love she put into each piece. Her attention to detail is beyond a 4th grade student.

Cassidy has more than just a special touch in the way she creates art. She also has a love for it. While teaching I often look at Cassidy for my class cues. She is always focused and you can see her mind working. It is as though you can see the wheels turning as she internalizes my lessons and catalogs the information with the other knowledge stored in the file. I often hear her explaining projects to students that need extra help. She does not just reiterate my lesson; she models and compares my lessons to other lessons taught within the school by me or other teachers. Cassidy is a student that I can not only foresee becoming an educator, but one of the best.

Cassidy's artwork was selected to be displayed at the county-wide art show. This Artshow houses art from all of the schools within the county. Due to space, we only choose about 50 artworks from our student population of 1,058 students.
