Reason(s) for the nomination

Megan is such a delight to have in class. She is the type of student an art teacher dreams to have in kindergarten and be able to nurture that talent for their full elementary journey. Megan is well behaved, interested, respectful, intelligent, thoughtful, insightful, and highly creative.

Though such a young age, and so new to school, Megan's artwork stands out from the rest of the class. We did a drawing from observation of SpongeBob Square Pants. This is one of my early drawing units with Kindergarten. We become shape detectives, learning that everything we can draw is made up of shapes. We learned that we really were not drawing SpongeBob, but rather observing shapes, that when put together in the correct order, form SpongeBob. Megan's rendition of the project was so outstanding other students in the school assumed a 5th grader or an older student had made it.

Megan pays close attention to all information and applies the knowledge and instruction to her art project with great care, focus, thought, and intention. She naturally understands how to apply the principles of art: balance, unity, variety, harmony, emphasis.

Megan inspires the other students in her class. It is hard to select only 1 or 2 of her projects to hold onto, as they all turn out with such excitement and superior skill that I want to display each one. One of Megan's art projects from this school year was selected to be on display the prestigious county-wide art show called Tapestry in February.
